

I Didn't Know I Needed Him

A song by C. D. Hildebrand 1974

I didn't know I needed Him.
I didn't know He cared.
I thought my life was going fine
And that my soul was well.

I'd heard them say He died for me.
I didn't really care.
They said He'd risen from the grave
And He'd be back again.

But it all seemed like fairy tales
A mother told her child,
Crutches for the weaker ones,
Or maybe—
Maybe just a lie.

But then He opened my sleeping eyes
And showed me what is right and true,
Filled me with His love and power,
And made my life brand new.

How could it be you cared for me
While I was cursing You
And hating those who spoke Your way
To be the only truth?

Dear God, if you'd do that for me,
There's nothing left to do
But give myself completely
To You—
Just to You.

For You have opened my sleeping eyes
And showed me what is right and true,
Filled me with Your love and power,
And made my life brand new.
You made my life so new.
You made my life—
Brand new.
