

Hold Fast

*C. D. Hildebrand
February 10, 2017*

*If one has never known freedom
He can scarcely discern the lack of it,
Only a faint distant longing
For a desire yet unknown.*

*Then when freedom first comes and the joys that accompany it,
There is no going back Except to misery forevermore.*

*“Hold fast therefore to this liberty
By which Christ has set us free, and do not be entangled again with the yoke of bondage” Lest you be estranged from its power and fall from grace.*
